

beneath translucent
A windless haven whose azure floor

The stars burned unfathomably glowed With tremulous stars immeasurably [lay] sparkled

about
And round which the solid vapours hoar

Built on the level waters, to the sky Based

Lifted their dreadful crags, & like a shore Of snow-bright mountains inaccessibly in caves & precipices Hemmed with caverns & [—] grey still creek &

[A—] & Many a bay
And [top ling] crags

And whilst the outer lake, beneath the lash foamed

Of the wind's scourge, writhed like a wounded thing

And the incessant hail with stony clash

Levelled the [murm—] Ploughed boiling flagging Tore up the troubled waters & the wing roused

Of the [wild] cormorant in the lightning flash wreck some wind-Looked like the fragment of a wandering

Fragment of the Fragment

[Form] of inky thundersmoke – [this] haven
Vapour

Was as a gem, to copy Heaven engraven

The With lay Canopus & his crew, the Austral lake

~~And other whiles the lady~~

[Or] weary
And when the moon was in the wane

Or in the noon of interlunar nights wild lady-witch in slumber cd not chain The winged lady [and] not trance contain soul

Her spirit, but she sailed forth under the lights

Of shooting stars, and [hail] the accustomed train and bade extend amain down

His storm outspeeding planes the hermaphrodite down [th——]

And the austral [] would speed her way

Whe[n]re like a meadow which no scythe had which shaven

~~Or rain had ever bent, or wind had shaken~~
The Ætheopian lake lay paven With the Antarctic constellations rain cd stars [-d] [storms] Which wind had never ben[d]t, & sun cd shake

With the Antarctic constellations paven

Canopus & his
The lay the Ætheopian lake build

And she would herself a wind less haven

Out of the clouds whose moving [turrests] make storm

The barriers The bastions of the west while thru the sky

The spirits of the tempest murmured by.